

10 KEY INSIGHT

1. It can be observed from the trends that BJP was leading by 235 seats, which was much less than what the exit polls had predicted, whereas the INDIA bloc making big gains, crossing the 200-mark in terms of leads.
2. From the trends it can be clearly seen that BJP had a downfall in UP with their seats decreasing from 62 seats in 2019 to 32 seats in 2024 elections whereas Samajwadi Party gained 37 seats but in 2019 it got only 5 seats which was a huge jump for Samajwadi Party but loss for BJP.
3. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has taken a lead of 72,000 votes over Congress's Ajay Rai in Varanasi Lok Sabha seat in Uttar Pradesh.
4. In Bihar, BJP was ahead in 11 seats and its partner JD-U in 14 seats. The RJD was poised to win five seats. At the end NDA (BJP & JD-U) won total 24 seats while RJD only won 4 seats.
5. In Andhra Pradesh, the TDP led by Chandrababu Naidu is ahead, while the BJD appears to be facing a setback in Odisha, with BJP leading in 18 seats.
6. In Haryana, BJP and INC got equal seats that is 5 seats each out of 10 seats. In Rajasthan, BJP is ahead in 14 seats against the eight of Congress.
7. Deeper south in Kerala, the BJP could make its much-debated electoral entry with trends showing it could bag two seats. In parallel, the Congress, which got 15 seats last time, was ahead in 13, including in Wayanad from where Rahul Gandhi is contesting.
8. In West Bengal, Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee-led Trinamool Congress is hoping to continue its dominance as it leads with 28 seats followed by BJP with 12 seats.

9. As of the Assembly elections, both Odisha and Andhra Pradesh seem to have voted for a change with the TDP alliance leading in the southern State and the BJP crossing the halfway mark in leads in Odisha.

10. The decline in the seats of BJP is linked to three states, which are Uttar Pradesh, Maharashtra, and Rajasthan
